Silverware Inc.'s Intacct Consultant Earns M.S. in Information Management
*Business Management Solutions Provider further strengthens its team

Phoenix, Ariz. – August 30, 2016 – Intacct Implementation Consultant Nancy McCarthy is adding new credentials to her resume. McCarthy, who works for the Phoenix-based software solution provider, Silverware Inc., recently earned her master's degree in Information Management from Arizona State University. McCarthy previously attended ASU, where she also earned a Bachelor of Science in Accounting.

"We are very proud of Nancy's academic and professional achievements. Her 30 years of experience in the field combined with the knowledge she's acquired in her master's program is invaluable to our customers and team," says Sara Silver, president of Silverware Inc.

McCarthy guides Silverware's customers through Intacct cloud accounting and financial management implementations and provides ongoing support. The master's program included an examination of ERP systems with real world case studies, which McCarthy attributes to rounding out her ability to help companies better understand the best approach when transitioning to a new financial and operations management environment.

"When you work in a technology-driven industry it is important that we stay on top of the ever-evolving advances in order to offer our customers the best solutions that address their changing business needs." adds Silver.

Silverware is a leading Dynamics NAV ERP and Intacct cloud financial software reselling partner headquartered in Phoenix at 5644 E. Thomas Rd. Silverware also has an office in Seattle, Washington and works with companies throughout the U.S providing design, implementation and support for accounting, business management and enterprise resource planning (ERP) solutions.
